Event Description

Beginning with the 2023 budget, Canada has begun to unveil its response to the emerging global race to scale up green energy and clean tech manufacturing capacity, with proposals for over C$60-billion in tax credits and another C$20-billion in sustainable infrastructure investments. This session will explore what Canada's green tech strategy means for developers and financiers in the current market.

Topics

- Current market outlook
- Canada's new federal tax credits: implications for existing project financing structures
- Sales of carbon offsets
- Lending solutions
